LOCAL OFFICIALS TEAM UP WITH NATIONAL LEADERSHIP TO REDUCE GUN CRIME IN OUR COMMUNITY

Federal Gun Crime Prosecutions Hit Record Highs, While Violent Crime Rate Hits 30-Year Low

Wichita, Kansas – The national Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN) conference met this week in Kansas City, Missouri and included an eleven person delegation from Kansas. Attorney General John Ashcroft spoke to over 1,150 federal, state, and local prosecutors, law enforcement officials, community leaders, and other members of the PSN teams from across the nation who came together to discuss efforts to reduce and prosecute gun crime. PSN is President Bush's comprehensive initiative to combat gun crime in America by providing locally-based programs with the tools and resources they need to succeed.

"Through Project Safe Neighborhood's unprecedented partnership of state, local and federal leaders, we are turning the tide on gun crime," said Attorney General John Ashcroft. "We are taking gun-wielding criminals off our streets. The last three years represent a record of great success, but working together, we can do even more to make our neighborhoods safe."

"This year, federal gun crime prosecutions in Kansas will be triple what they were 3 years ago," United States Attorney Eric Melgren said. "Meanwhile, our rates of violent crime are at historic lows. These two factors are not coincidental. We know that, in our communities, a disproportionately small number of violent offenders are responsible for a disproportionately large amount of violent crime. President Bush initiated the Project Safe Neighborhoods program because he understood that if those violent offenders were removed and sent to federal prison for a long time, the result would be safer neighborhoods. Kansas, like the rest of the nation, is now enjoying the enhanced safety which has resulted from this successful program."

Federal Gun Crime Prosecutions Have Increased Significantly Every Year Under Project Safe Neighborhoods. From FY 2000 to FY 2003, federal firearms prosecutions increased by 68%. In FY 2003, the Justice Department filed over 10,500 federal firearms cases—the highest number ever recorded by the Department. The number of defendants charged with federal gun crimes rose from approximately 10,600 to over 13,000 from FY 2002 to FY 2003, a record increase of almost 23%. These figures are the highest on record in a single year since the Department began recording this information. In FY 2003, nearly all — 93% — of convicted defendants, who were originally charged with federal firearms offenses, were sentenced to some time in prison for convictions on firearms charges or other charges. 72% were sentenced to more than three years in prison, and over half of all defendants convicted were sentenced to more than five years in federal prison. State and local prosecutions have also increased.

Project Safe Neighborhoods Is Working In Kansas. U.S. Attorney Eric Melgren, working side by side with state and local law enforcement, prosecutors and other community leaders, has created a PSN strategy to fit the unique gun crime problem in Kansas. Criminals who use guns are prosecuted under federal, state, or local laws, depending on which jurisdiction can provide the most appropriate punishment.

The U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Kansas received the Exemplary Training Program award presented at the Project Safe Neighborhoods conference. This award was given for our statewide Project Safe Neighborhoods training program. This training was given by an Assistant U.S. Attorney, who primarily prosecuted gun crimes, and a Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives special agent and was presented 19 times in 18 locations across the state training 665 law enforcement officers and prosecutors on federal firearms laws.

Project Safe Neighborhoods Has Contributed to Decreasing the Violent Crime Rate to Its Lowest Levels in 30 Years, But Reducing Gun Crime Remains an Important Goal. The violent crime rate is now at its lowest level since 1973, when the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics started collecting criminal victimization data. The violent crime rate for the first two years of the Bush Administration (2001-2002) was nearly 21% lower than for 1999-2000. The per capita number of violent crimes involving firearms has dropped 14% in 2001-2002, from 1999-2000. There were approximately 64,000 fewer gun crimes and approximately 12% (almost 130,000) fewer victims of gun crime in 2001-2002, than in 1999-2000.

A PSN success story is the prosecution and conviction of David Hamilton, Plainville, Kansas, who was sentenced on January 26, 2004, to 13 years and 5 months in federal prison. Hamilton entered a guilty plea on October 28, 2003, to one count of possessing a sawed off shotgun in relation to a drug trafficking crime and one count of being a felon in possession of a handgun. This conviction followed an eighteen month investigation starting in January 2002 by the North Central Kansas Drug Task Force into the manufacture and distribution of methamphetamine by Hamilton. In the year before Hamilton's arrest, law enforcement officers with the Central Kansas Drug Task Force worked 27 meth labs found in the area, however, the year following Hamilton's arrest, the number of meth labs fell to only three. For additional details on the impact this conviction had on the Plainville community, please call Plainville Police Chief Gary Knight at (785) 434-2222.

Project Safe Neighborhoods Takes a Multifaceted Approach to Reducing Gun Crime. Gun crime reduction is President Bush's top domestic criminal justice initiative, and the Bush Administration has devoted over $1 billion to Project Safe Neighborhoods in its first four years (FY 2001 to FY 2004). The funds have been used to hire new federal, state, and local prosecutors, provide training, hire research and community outreach support, and develop and promote effective prevention and deterrence efforts. Each of the 94 federal judicial districts engages in deterrence and prevention efforts through community outreach and media campaigns and ensures that law enforcement and prosecutors have the training they need.

The PSN conference is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Justice. To find out more about PSN and its local programs, visit the PSN website at www.psn.gov.
